IN THE CLAIMS:

Add the following new claims:

--50. A method for communicating and ordering material and supply data from an intended recipient, comprising instructions the steps of:

initiating a contractor/customer ordering computer program;

entering one or more material or product names and a specific quantity desired for each material or product into a categorization table;

said ordering program attaching an intended recipient specific part number, part name, stock keeping unit (SKU), universal product code, or bar code for each material or product entered; and said ordering program generating a list displaying the intended recipient specific part number, part name, stock keeping unit (SKU), universal product code, or bar code and quantity for each material or product.

51. The method as recited in claim 50, further comprising the means of transferring said list to said intended recipient.

52. The method as recited in claim 50, wherein said ordering computer program is located remotely from the contractor's/customer's computer.

53. The method as recited in claim 50, wherein said contractor/customer assesses the computer program over an internet or network system.

2

09/545,991

54. A method for communicating and ordering material and supply data from an intended recipient, comprising the steps of:

initiating a contractor/customer ordering computer program;

selecting a recipient from a first menu displayed by said computer program;

entering one or more material or product names and a specific quantity desired for each material or product into a categorization table;

said ordering program attaching an intended recipient specific part number, part name, stock keeping unit (SKU), universal product code, or bar code for each material or product entered; and

said ordering program generating a list displaying the intended recipient specific part number, part name, stock keeping unit (SKU), universal product code, or bar code and quantity for each material or product.

55. The method as recited in claim 54, further comprising the means of transferring said list to said intended recipient.

56. The method as recited in claim 54, wherein said ordering computer program is located remotely from the contractor's/customer's computer.

57. The method as recited in claim 54, wherein said contractor/customer assesses the computer program over an internet or network system.

58. A method for communicating and ordering material and supply data from an intended recipient, comprising the steps of:

3

09/545,991

initiating a contractor/customer ordering computer program;

said ordering program displaying a construction phase specific categorization table;

entering one or more material or product names and a specific quantity desired for each material or product into said categorization table;

said ordering program attaching an intended recipient specific part number, part name, stock keeping unit (SKU), universal product code, or bar code for each material or product entered; and

said ordering program generating a list displaying the intended recipient specific part number, part name, stock keeping unit (SKU), universal product code, or bar code and quantity for each material or product.

59.   The method as recited in claim 58, wherein said ordering computer program is located remotely from the contractor's/customer's computer.

60.   The method as recited in claim 58, wherein said contractor/customer assesses the computer program over an internet or network system.

61.   A method for communicating and ordering material and supply data from an intended recipient, comprising instructions the steps of:

initiating a contractor/customer ordering computer program;

entering one or more material or product names and a specific quantity desired for each material or product into a categorization table;

said ordering program attaching an intended recipient specific part number, part name,

4

09/545,991